The link between biodiversity, food security, and health

The global COVID 19 pandemic is making visible the effects the destruction of ecosystems can have on human health. The International Climate Initiative has been addressing the conservation of biodiversity and, thus, of ecosystems since its inception in 2008. In 2019, the IKI approved 19 new projects related to biodiversity. All these projects have a clear goal: They want to address the causes of biodiversity loss and contribute to the conservation, restoration, and sustainable use of nature reserves.

NEWS

The need for sustainable mobility in India

ITDP is committed to sustainable transport and urban development. Aswathy Dilip reports on the Complete Streets programme in India.

2020: The year of NDC enhancements

Read how nationally determined contributions function and how they contribute to the mitigation of the global impacts of climate change.

Blue Solutions reaches interim goals
Find out how the marine protection project will present a series of new voluntary commitments once its interim targets for SDG 14 are met.

Colombia – a biodiversity hotspot
Colombia is one of the most diverse countries in the world – and many IKI projects support the conservation of this rich biodiversity.

Great demand on sustainable seeds
As part of the Farming for Biodiversity project Daniela Borja created guidelines on the topic of sustainable seeds for Rare.

Farming with alternative pollinators
ICARDA is committed to the protection of pollinator insects in North Africa. In an interview, Dr Stefanie Christmann talks about her work for the NGO.

Beekeeping fosters climate resilience
Find out how an IKI project on beekeeping provides new opportunities for realising income, food security and nature conservation in Viet Nam.

all news

PUBLICATIONS

Closing the deal on ‘CDM Transition’ – How COP 25 defined new guardrails for compromise and what they mean for Africa
Reviving national economies & health systems following the COVID-19 pandemic

EVENTS

London Climate Action Week: Digital
1 - 3 July 2020
(Virtual Conference)

[website]

9th International Conference on Sustainable Tourism
8 - 10 July 2020
(Virtual Conference)

[website]

Would you like to promote an event in the IKI newsletter? Please send a message to: communications@z-u-q.org

VIDEOS

Uganda’s motorbikes go green

[watch]

Digital solutions for adaptation to climate change

[watch]

Would you like to promote a video in the IKI newsletter? Please send a message to: communications@z-u-q.org

all videos