International Climate Initiative rolls out Corona Response Package

The COVID 19 pandemic poses a significant challenge to societies and governments worldwide. While protecting the health of citizens is a top priority, it is also vital to address the prevention of future pandemics and the restart of economic activities. The German Federal Ministry for the Environment, Nature Conservation, and Nuclear Safety (BMU) has developed a Corona Response Package of 68 Million euros under IKI, to support rapid measures for a sustainable recovery. Key priority areas include: emergency measures for nature reserves and biodiversity hotspots, support for green economic recovery and prevention of pandemics.
